AN INTRODUCTION TO ANNA PEPE

Anna Pepe's canvases explore the female form, capturing both the structural and the sensual. Pepe works extensively with textured surfaces, aged fabrics, and large-scale canvases, while also investigating the depth and intensity of colour.

Anna Pepe's art is shaped by the idea of a dual origin –whether understood as biology or metaphor. Her work unfolds through two distinct visual languages. In one, she creates soft, atmospheric compositions with blurred, almost dissolving female figures, reminiscent of aged frescoes and mythological imagery. In the other, she reduces the body to simplified, archetypal forms, flattened, minimal, and defined by sharp contrasts. These parallel approaches can be seen as an internal dialogue between what is often described as the “female gaze” and the “male gaze”, two modes of perceiving the female body. Rather than choosing between them, Pepe inhabits both, allowing tension and duality to remain unresolved

In the 'Forms' collection, Anna explores and reinvents the beauty of the feminine form through abstract deconstructions. Each piece captures the essence of the female body in its simplest and purest form, inviting the viewer to interpret and contemplate the underlying messages. With a minimalist approach, these artworks challenge our perception of beauty and provoke a deeper understanding of the human form.
